

Flash Flood Information

- ◆ Before hiking in a slot canyon check the weather forecast (Goblin Valley updates the weather forecast posted in the windows daily).
- ◆ Realize that dry washes are results of previous flash floods.
- ◆ By entering a narrow canyon you are assuming a risk.
- ◆ Avoid narrow canyons during stormy weather.
- ◆ Be aware of changing conditions.
- ◆ Know your escape routes.
- ◆ If hiking in a stream, be aware of rising water levels or stronger currents and sudden changes in water clarity.

Heat Exhaustion/Dehydration

- ◆ Be aware of this arid environment where temperatures often exceed 90 degrees in summer and access to water is generally scarce.
- ◆ During summer carry at least one gallon per person per day to stay hydrated.
- ◆ Signs of heat exhaustion can include: heavy sweating, paleness, muscle cramps, tiredness, weakness, dizziness, headache, nausea/vomiting, or fainting.
- ◆ Treatment can include: cool beverages, rest, cool shower, or an air-conditioned environment.
- ◆ Signs of dehydration can include: muscle weakness, dry or sticky mouth, headache, lightheadedness, and thirst.

Little Wild Horse Canyon Trail Information

Directions:

Turn on the signed, improved road for Little Wild Horse just before entering Goblin Valley State Park. Drive approximately 5.4 miles to the trailhead, which will be on the right. If the parking lot is full, there are additional spots a short distance down the road.

Little Wild Horse/Bell Loop:

From the trailhead — 8 mile loop (4-6 hours)

This eight-mile loop can be completed by going up either Bell or Little Wild Horse first followed by a connection on a dirt road and then coming down the other canyon. From the parking lot, follow the trail along the wash for 0.5 miles (10-15) minutes, where a small sign indicates that Little Wild Horse is on the right. Head up either canyon. When you exit the canyon, walk 1.6 miles along Behind The Reef Road until you connect with the other canyon. Once you return to the fork, follow the wash back to the trailhead and your car.

Little Wild Horse and Bell Canyon Loop is a moderately strenuous hike. Although it doesn't require technical canyoneering skills, hikers should be in good physical condition. Sections of this hike require basic scrambling skills and the use of both hands and feet to maneuver around obstacles.
